

IRC Global Conference in Athens: Citius, Altius, Fortius

September 27, 2019

IRC Global Executive Search Partners, the world's largest executive search alliance, will hold its Global Conference in Athens, Greece on October 2-4, 2019. This year's theme Citius, Altus, Fortius – Faster, Higher, Stronger, is inspired by the event location in the cradle of Olympic Games.

IRC partners from 45 countries all over the world will gather in Athens to discuss the latest trends in the executive search business and share their experience and best practices. Digital transformation and the implications of technological advances such as AI, big data, e-commerce or Internet of Things remain to be the key trends for the future in all sectors.

“Our annual conference provides a unique opportunity for our member to reconnect face-to-face. This year 70 of our partners will meet, share experiences and develop strategies to strengthen our alliance. Of course in Athens, with its rich Olympic history, we have the perfect venue to focus on ways to be ‘faster, higher, stronger’,” says Rohan Carr, President of the IRC Executive Board.

IRC Global Conference participants will use the opportunity of this face to face meeting to deepen their relationships and discuss critical trends as the alliance strives to provide exceptional service across the globe.

There will also be two external keynote speakers joining the conference. Nancy Garrison Jen, Executive Search advisor and expert, will deliver her speech on the key trends in the industry “Executive Search: Today & Tomorrow” on Thursday, October 3. And on Friday, October 4, Nikolaos Kaklamanakis, Olympic Gold & Silver Medallist, will deliver his speech themed “Winning is our choice”.
